

Professional Statement

Strengths: training and development, decisive problem solving, rapid learner.

Values: protecting personal data and people, compliance with laws and regulations

1. The main interest for me is how large companies and governments handle the threats that nefarious agencies pose to them.
2. The audience for my professional statement is going to be government agencies and their recruitment officials.
3. My skills in training others, making quick decisions, and learning on the fly are key to building a strong cybersecurity mindset in any organization. My dedication to protecting personal data and following the rules fits perfectly with the need to keep information safe and comply with privacy and security laws. Since I'm mainly interested in how big companies and governments handle serious cyber threats, I feel well-suited for roles that focus on defending against complex attacks and managing security strategies.
